Our Story

As a teenager, I found an audio tape of my grandmother a few years after she had died. As my family listened to the voice and the laughter of someone we had loved and lost, we were inspired by an idea we have chased ever since. We became dedicated to capturing the essence of lives and personalities — recording and preserving these memories with the latest technologies — striving for the dream that some day no one will be forgotten — that each of us will be able to personally tell our own stories to the future. This is the promise of FOREVER.

This dream unexpectedly led us to funeral homes and cemeteries — where memories have a special resonance and purpose. In 1986, a client of our biography business died, and his son asked if we would show his father's biographical documentary at the funeral. As we watched the deceased appear on a screen at his own funeral – sharing his life stories and professing his loves one last time — we knew we had found the heart of our dream.

In grief and loss, memory is one of the most potent antidotes. During the most unbearable of times and the most inexplicable of tragedies, tangible memories of love and life can heal and sustain. They remain with us — remnants of life — outliving their source by surviving within us.

You have come to Hollywood Forever to remember someone you have known and loved — or perhaps you have come to decide how you wish to be remembered. Though death is the cause of our meeting, let us endeavor to celebrate life. Our hope is to help you fill the emptiness of loss by assisting you in giving expression to the richness and particular beauty of a life that was like none other.

Here, the only rules and traditions are the ones you walked in with. If religion or spirituality brings you solace, comfort, and meaning at this time — we will work with you to bring your beliefs and your heritage into the heart of the ceremony. All faiths and creeds are welcome — and we have sought the knowledge and understanding to serve your traditions with truth and authenticity.

If the traditions of the past do not speak to you, then allow us to reinforce the freedom you have to find a new way to honor and express the spirit and the personality of the one you have lost. We encourage you to leave behind any preconceptions of what a memorial should be. Create your own path, discover your own rituals of honor and remembrance — be they profound, humorous, sacred, or profane. We'll be there right beside you — step by step — trying to anticipate your needs and fulfill what you envision.

We like to believe that the staff members of Hollywood Forever have uncommon hearts, unexpected creativity, quiet strength, and deep compassion. May you find these qualities here, and may they serve you well in this time of need.

—Tyler Cassity, Owner

Please remember that service options for cremation are as plentiful as those for any other type of funeral service. You may decide on flowers, service folders, musical selections, or a dove release. You may choose to have clergy officiate or to have family and friends speak. Whatever your wishes, your counselor will assist you in creating a funeral or memorial service to best honor and remember your loved one.

Because our options include various types of services, no credits for deletions or substitutions are possible.

PLEASE NOTE:
Cremation containers, caskets, urns, and outer burial containers are not included in our cremation packages. Instead, they are offered on separate price lists, which will be provided by your funeral counselor.
